“We wanted to create a football experience that allowed players to truly feel the intensity of the competition as realistically as possible,” said Jan Stenerud, senior gameplay director.

“HyperMotion Technology provides an incredibly realistic and immersive football experience that makes you feel as if you are really on the pitch with the action unfolding in front of you.” Fans should expect to experience high-octane action when they step into the game, with completely reimagined AI teammates, improvements to ball physics and tackling, new animations and game modes, including two new ways to play in the new

New Defending (D) Tactical Style In addition to the more intelligent Teammate AI, FIFA 22 will feature a brand-new Defending (D) Tactical Style, a new collection of playable tactics. “The Defending (D) Tactical Style has been designed to provide players with more options when they want to play a certain way,” said Max Anstie, gameplay lead. “We’ve also added a set of Player Tactic Ratings (PTRs) to give each tactical style its own personal ratings, so you can quickly navigate to whichever one is best suited to your playstyle.”

New formations and new formations on the ball FIFA 22’s tactical offering will now feature three distinct formations on the pitch – “DASH” with a catenaccio-style defensive tactical style, the “TYPICAL” with a more boxy defensive formation, and “PASSION” with a more expansive attacking setup. “Players will now have much more freedom when they play in the new formation they’ve chosen,” said Anstie. “For example, the PASSION formation works best for a player who wants to try and break through opponents in possession – while the DASH formation is best for a
